

This Statement provides the principles for the regulatory approach WorkCover WA will take when performing our legislative and regulatory functions.

We recognise the challenges of implementing major change within our scheme while continuing to perform our functions at the highest level.

We pursue our regulatory priorities and maximise our regulatory impact by:

- Providing advice and assistance to stakeholders, and producing information resources and training programs.
- Regulating and monitoring the performance of scheme participants.
- Undertaking data driven compliance inspections and investigations.
- Taking enforcement action to address instances of non-compliance.

Regulatory Fundamentals	Regulatory Mindsets	Regulatory Impact	Regulatory Priorities
We perform our regulatory functions carefully and purposefully, always considering the aims of our Act and our jurisdiction.	We are skilled, driven and resilient. We have the tools to achieve quality outcomes and are supported by value driven leaders.	We proactively make stakeholders aware of their obligations, leading to better protected workers.	We will establish effective frameworks underpinning the new legislation and supporting stakeholders' transition to the new arrangements from 1 July 2024.
We carry out our functions consistently, ethically and transparently, and our stakeholders trust us to do so.	We are prolific and rigorous in our use of available information to realise our goals.	We assist stakeholders to understand the basis for enforcement activities.	We will explore new communication pathways to provide information and assistance to our broadest stakeholder groups.
We build and nurture productive working relationships with our stakeholders, which makes our scheme more effective.	We foster strategic partnerships to ensure data sharing opportunities are maximised.	We are confident our enforcement decisions are consistent and impartial.	We will expand opportunities for information sharing with other government agencies.
We assist stakeholders, set clear expectations, and take reasonable enforcement action when required.	We think creatively, challenge appropriately, and always strive to innovate as we achieve our outcomes.	We ensure high risk and high offending stakeholder groups receive focused attention to ensure they understand and comply with their obligations.	We will embed the in-house prosecution function and strengthen the linkages between our investigation and prosecution processes.
